LEARN TO DRIVE-AND SURVIVE

BEFORE the record season just closed, it had always seemed to us that baseball's 154-game schedule should have been cut to 140 games. As a general rule all interest has been withering on the September vine for 12 or 14 of the major league entries. The year 1946 has told a different story in the way of attendance figures, but certainly not enough to justify any 14-game increase to 168 contests as proposed by a few club owners.

Ty Cobb

With the wild rush to sport after the war, this has been an abnormal year. You get the main idea when the Phillies, a tail-end contender, could approach the million mark at home. Most major league clubs play at least 32 exhibition games. The 168-game menu would therefore give ball players 200 games to handle between early March and October. This is more than most ball players can absorb without going stale. Three hours of baseball each day seems easy work. But three hours of hustling competitive sport each afternoon or night is another story.

Even with the 154-game schedule the number of weary, injured, bedraggled ball players is something greater than you might think. Ty Cobb told me once that 154 games was about all any hard-playing hustler could handle.

"In the old days," Ty said, "I wasn't a hold out. I simply didn't need or want all that early training and all of those exhibition games. I hunted all winter and kept my legs in shape. I remember in 1911 I didn't join the Tigers until they reached Evansville, six days before the season opened. That year I hit for .420 and stole 83 bases as I recall it. One answer was that I was still keen and fresh in August and September when a lot of the others were stale and tired."

Danger of Staleness

This seems to make sense. No athlete who has lost his keenness, who has grown stale, can be of much help. The right sort of ball player will keep in shape all winter, through golf or hunting. The spring training and the spring exhibition campaign has been badly overdone. Add 14 extra ball games to the present list and it will mean more baseball than most players could handle—and still retain the badly needed hustle.

Also with the additional 14 games suggested, ball players' salaries should be lifted from 10 to 15 per cent over the 154-game pay. With the record attendances 1946 has offered, you can look for a rousing scrap on the part of the ball player for a big jump, even at 154 games. But who is going to see that the ball player gets this percentage increase above the demand he might make for the present schedule?

Roughnecks in the Ring

It was James J. Corbett, a great boxer and the smartest fighter the game has ever known in or out of the ring, who first set a rather sour example by being known as "Gentleman Jim."

For the ring is no spot for a gentleman, or anything approaching the same. And Jim Corbett was no gentleman in any ring. He told me this himself. The gentleman has his club or his box at the opera or track, but he is out of place.

It remained for Hughey Keogh, years ago, to tell the true story:

"There was no high finance about
The game of spoiling mugs,
When the dear old tub from Boston
Was the King.

When we paid our honest tribute
To the other tanks and jugs
And the solree with the raw 'uns
Was the thing.

"Fighting bade adieu to its
Traditions long ago,
And kissed its grimy hand
To sentiment,
When they took it to the steam heat
From the hall and rain and snow
And a champion aspired
To be a gent."

I still recall a story Jim Corbett once told me. Jim was fighting Joe Choynski on a barge.

"I nalled him in the ninth round," Jim said, "and Joe fell to the floor. I stooped and lifted him up. The cheers were terrific. But I lifted him so I could nail him again before he recovered. Then the boos were terrific." Gentleman Jim Corbett also knew his game.

Dempsey the Killer

Jack Dempsey, at heart, was about as close to being a gentleman, outside the ring, as anyone I've known. But only outside the ring. There he was kind, generous, thoughtful and courteous. Inside the ring he was a killer. Anything went. I saw him once giving Max Baer a few lessons.

"You can't do that," Baer said. "It's illegal."

"You can get away with it once," Dempsey said. "I have."

Miss Fonnle E. Davis of Elm street will talk on "Old Sandwich Glass" at a meeting Saturday of the Samuel Adams chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, Lawrence. Frederick W. Perkins, Jr., has been elected correspondent for the Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity at Colby College in Waterville, Maine.

Perkins is the son of Mr. F. W. Perkins, 19 Essex street, and Mrs. Margaret Perkins of Salem. He is studying at Colby under Public Law 16 following service in the U. S. Marine Corps. He and his wife and their infant son reside at 28 College avenue in Waterville.

DRILL SUBMARINE

Boston already has four Submarine Units in full swing. The regular weekly Wednesday night meetings, at 8 p. m., in Fargo Barracks, Boston, have been so successful that plans for a drill submarine will soon be realized. The acquisition of this submarine will permit the rounding out of an extensive training program for about 800 submarine veterans in this area, both in the Organized and Voluntary Naval Reserve.

Two-week training cruises, with full pay, will begin in early '47 and submarine veterans are urged to attend the meetings and familiarize themselves with this movement.

The people in Wilmington have had sufficient proof that every vote counts, since the town authorized the selling of beer by only one vote.

During the business meeting of the Amvets Thursday night, delegates from the Veterans of Foreign Wars auxiliary presented colors to the Post. Mrs. Herbert Kent, patriotic instructor of the auxiliary, made the presentation to Commander Joseph Serio and she was accompanied by Mrs. Charles Spinney, president, and Mrs. Herbert Folley, conductress. Hit or Miss Driving Has More Hits Than Misses Teaching a beginner how to drive is not a hit or miss proposition but a grave responsibility and the Central P. T. A., inspired by an article "Teach Them How To Drive—and Survive" appearing in the Women's Home Companion, have organized a driving course at Punchard with the co-operation of the faculty, the registry of motor vehicles and interested citizens of the town who volunteered their cars and assistance.

Classroom instruction under the direction of Owen Hinkley and driving fundamentals supervised by Eugene J. Fanning, inspector in charge of the pre-driver education department of the registry, will be supplemented with a trip to Boston where tests in reactionary timing, steering coordination, vision and glare recovery will be given to each student.

These tests will show whether the prospective driver has peripheral or tenal vision and their driving may then be governed accordingly, the person with tenal vision driving more slowly than those with peripheral. Mr. Fanning explained that nature sets the reaction timing of the individual and it is comparatively static until the age of 65 while steering coordination is something that can be improved upon with persistent practice.

Fourteen pupils attended the first lesson given at the school parking space Wednesday afternoon when they were first familiarized with the meters on the panel of the car. Proper adjustment of the front seat and the rear view mirror were pointed out as preliminary "musts" and the timing of foot action from gas pedal to foot brake was practiced time after time for maximum speed and efficiency in bringing the car to a quick stop.

Some of the students who already had some experience were allowed to drive around the parking lot but the beginners were merely taught the gear action and the correct method of starting the car. The first steps in changing a tire were demonstrated by John Murray, who is volunteering his time to the course, and boys and girls alike tried their luck at removing and replacing car wheels. Mary Lord was the first pupil to attempt the mechanics of removing the nuts and was slightly confused when handed the XX shaped wrench for the job. None of the wrenches seemed to be the right size and when one of her fellow-students suggested that she try the one on the other end, she replied in exasperation, "but they're all ends."

The students are fortunate in not only being taught to drive, but in being taught to drive safely and the P. T. A. is hopeful that the parents will also become interested in the project and accompany the young drivers during their lessons.

Teachings of Christian Science Explained By Lieut. Col. Key

Many townspeople responded to the invitation extended by The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, to attend the Christian Science lecture given in Memorial auditorium last Sunday afternoon by Lt. Col. Robert E. Key, C. S. B., of London, England. The subject of the lecture was "The Call of Christian Science."

The speaker pointed out that Christian Science teaches that God is not an unknown quantity dwelling in a far-off realm, but reveals God as knowable, understandable, adorable. In the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," the author, Mary Baker Eddy, has defined God in seven synonymous terms: Mind, Spirit, Soul, Principle, Life, Truth, Love.

"The student," said Col. Key, "will find that Christian Science demands a radical change of thought, sometimes amounting to an entire reversal of his previous mode of thinking and living. This fact should be taken into account by young students of Christian Science. The goal of Christian Science is not reached without taking the preliminary foot steps. The mountain climber must tread the foothills before he can ascend the peaks."

The lecturer called the attention of his audience to the fact that Mrs. Eddy scaled the heights of divine Science by patient and persistent effort, by treading the foothills of highest humanhood. "By her own example," he said, "she taught her followers to improve and transform their lives. She encouraged them to floodlight the darkness of materiality with the glory of God, and to be obedient at all times to the Golden Rule, the Ten Commandments, and the spirit of the Sermon on the Mount, which, as she said, is the essence of Christian Science.

"Christian Scientists owe Mrs. Eddy a profound debt of gratitude. They revere her as the Discoverer and Founder of a religion which has healed and satisfied them. Christian Science proclaims a full salvation from sin, sickness, and death. All types of sin and disease yield to it. Christ Jesus did not recommend the sinner to go for healing to the priest, or send the sick man to a medical practitioner. To him theology and medicine were one, and they remain one in Christian Science."

Col. Key is a member of the Board of Lectureship of The Mother Church, which sponsored the lecture.

WEST CHURCH MINISTER TENDERS RESIGNATION

Last Sunday, November 10, the Reverend Leslie J. Adkins tendered his resignation as minister of the West church and parish in order to accept an opportunity for special psychological study. His resignation will become effective on December 31, 1946. The letter of resignation which he read at the morning service of worship is as follows:

November 10, 1946
To the members of the West Church and Parish of Andover:
Dear Friends:

A year ago last October, I came to you as minister of the West church and parish. From the very first you were most cordial to me and my family.

You cooperated heartily and there were new members received and the finances of the church were increased. You have made our work in your midst very happy. The superintendents, teachers and officers of the Church School have carried on efficient instruction for the young. The organist together with the Senior and Junior Choirs have enriched our worship. The Men's Brotherhood has been a joy to me. The enthusiastic work of the two Woman's Unions has been an inspiration. I have been much interested in helping in the task of the Vestry Committee and congratulate them on the work they have thus far done with the architect in making plans for the much needed extension of the facilities of the Vestry.

The work of the Ministry is essentially that of dealing with people in trying to help them to a happier, more abundant life in the worship of God. The contribution of the science of psychology to the work of the ministry has long been understood. I have always availed myself of opportunities to improve my knowledge of psychology by taking summer school courses or, on occasion, longer graduate courses.

Last summer I was taking courses in Columbia University Summer

School in New York and I was offered an opportunity of a thorough course of training in psychotherapy, which is the art of applying psychological knowledge to the problems of individual people. I was greatly challenged by this opportunity, since for a long time I had desired to take training of this thorough-going nature.

On my return to West Parish at the end of the summer, I discussed the whole matter with the Church Committee, telling them I would like permission to go to New York for two days a week for courses of study in Psychotherapy in order that I might be able to consider the challenge of the new opportunity as carefully as possible. I greatly appreciate the Church Committee's willingness to grant me this request. Thus I have been going to New York each week for courses of study.

It has now become clear to me and my family that it is right for me to accept the opportunity for study. After consultation, last Sunday night, with the Church Committee and the Parish Assessors in joint meeting, I hereby tender my resignation as minister of the Church and Parish to become effective December 31, 1946.

I shall be studying at the Washington School of Psychiatry, New York branch, and also be serving an internship in a Psychiatric Hospital under the Inter-Church Council for Clinical Training in conjunction with the New York Academy of Medicine.

I enter this training with the belief that it will fit me for greater usefulness. It is with much regret that I am leaving you as your minister. The personal friendships of the members and friends of the church, I shall always treasure.

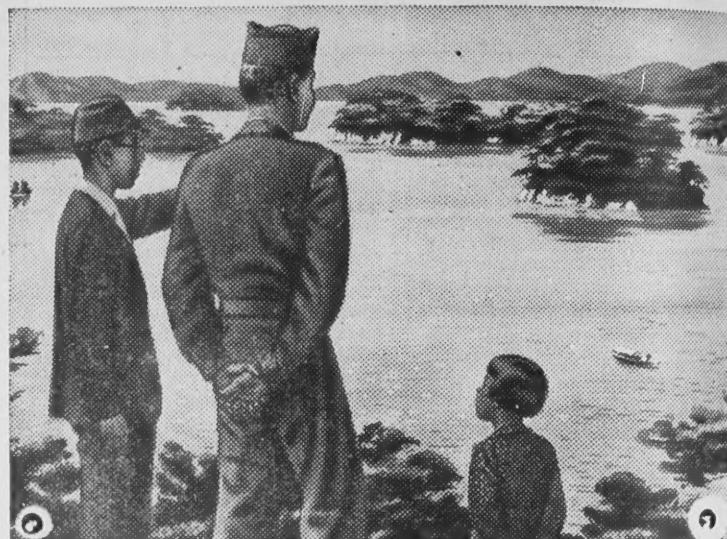

May the blessing of God be upon you all.

Sincerely yours,
LESLIE JOHN ADKINS

Miss Kathryn A. McCarthy of 26 High street says she has merely swapped sides of the teacher's desk and seems singularly unimpressed by her accomplishments. Graduated from Jackson College, department for women at Tufts, in October, 1944, she returned to college the following month as a graduate student and received her master's degree in physics in June, 1946.

"Funny thing is, I hated physics until my senior year in college, she informs her friends, 'so I majored in math until that last year. Then I guess I saw I could make a more active application of my math in the field of physics."

Following the awarding of her master's degree, Miss McCarthy was made an associate member of Sigma Xi, honorary scientific society. "I hope to be a full member of Sigma Xi when I'm old enough to be elected," she says wistfully.

Miss McCarthy is known to her friends and former classmates as "Mac," although the presence of three possible "Macs" in the department of physics has recently changed her nickname to "Micketty." "I answer to all three names, but it isn't particularly confusing," she reports calmly.

Teaching ten hours a week in the veteran-crowded classrooms and laboratories of the School of Engineering, Mac spends the rest of her time doing radio research for the government Signal Corps project now being carried on at Tufts. She prefers teaching to research.

"It's just that I like people better than things," she explains. "I'd rather others did the research and made the discoveries, but I want to be the one to pass the knowledge on to people who want it badly enough to work for it."

Tufts' youngest faculty member has energy and enthusiasm enough for both her jobs and her hobbies, which include vociferous support of Tufts football teams and Boston baseball nines, and the collection of small stuffed animals known as the "Mitzi's."

"I call them that because the first one, given to me when I was a year old, had white paws, so my family (I was too young to be consulted) named it Mitzi and the name got shortened to Mitzi." There are 23 Mitzi's and a few of them, including precious Mitzi I and Mitzi II, share Mac's residence at 128 Professors' Row on the Tufts campus.

Mac thinks girls have as good a chance for success in the scientific fields as men do. "That is, if they're really on the ball," she amends. "A girl has to be more on the ball than a man. And girls who try to take advantage of their feminine charms to get ahead in scientific fields usually wind up on the doorstep."

While the field of physics is not necessarily limited for girls, Mac feels that the conscientious girl scientist will limit her own activities to jobs she can handle by herself and not cripple the efficiency of her associates. "Assistants shouldn't be reduced to the status of day laborers doing the heavy work for some girl scientist when they could be advancing in their own right," she believes.

Mac decided that she wanted to teach during her senior year at Pynchard High school when she substituted for the teacher of a sophomore Latin class. "I had a slight case of stage fright before the class met, but once I got started, I wasn't a bit nervous," she recalls. "That was when I decided I didn't want to be a dentist, after all."

Mac says the veterans in her classes are good students and challenge her teaching ability because they are willing to sacrifice speed to thoroughness. "I cover less work with veterans because they ask so many questions," she says. "They want the practical side of everything, and details. They cover as much ground as the others eventually, and they know much more about the subject when they've finished."

It's been a problem to arrange courses for veterans, she admits, because of the varying degrees of preparation and experience with which her students come to their first class. Scheduling a course for such an assorted group is like solving a Chinese puzzle. And surprising things do happen.

"One day I was explaining the laws governing the flight of projectiles, and one of the boys started to grin. I asked him what was up, and he said nothing was wrong, but that he'd been an artillery Major in the army, and it was all too familiar to him. Well, I directed the questions toward him and managed to incorporate what he knew into the class discussion. I'm sure the class learned more that way than I could have put across single-handed." This is only one example of the ways in which Mac has added to her courses the knowledge the veterans acquired during their war service.

Mac is particularly happy about being on the Tufts faculty because she likes the atmosphere of a college community and her father and brother are both Tufts men. Also, she points out, the discipline problem in a college is insignificant, while in some high schools it has become more important than the actual teaching.

Mac's father, Joseph A. McCarthy, is Chief of Laboratories for the Massachusetts Department of Health. Mac didn't follow in her father's footsteps because she dislikes chemistry intensely. Her father was graduated from the School of Liberal Arts in 1913, and her brother Joseph, a veteran, is a junior at Tufts.

The only thing about her campus status that bothers Mac is its complexity. "I have to think fast when I meet people," she says, "to know whether I should say 'How do you do?' 'Hello,' or just plain 'Hi.'"

Blue Kicks A Win In 66th Tussel With Exeter Reds

Phillips wound up its football season with a 7-6 win over Exeter last Saturday at Andover. In this game, the 66th in the oldest schoolboy football series in the country, Andover's Captain Johnny Clayton of Chelmsford ran back the opening kick-off for a touchdown in the first minute of play, and Walt Horne, of East Williston, L. I., kicked the extra point which was to be the deciding edge. Exeter's Dick Leonard, in the second quarter, climaxed a steady 37-yard march by driving through for the only Exeter score, but the try for the extra point failed.

The Exeter-Andover series which started in 1878, now stands as follows: Exeter has won 28, Andover 33, and there have been five tie games. This season both teams were very closely matched, and their records were similar Exeter having won three, lost two and tied one, while Andover won four and lost two.

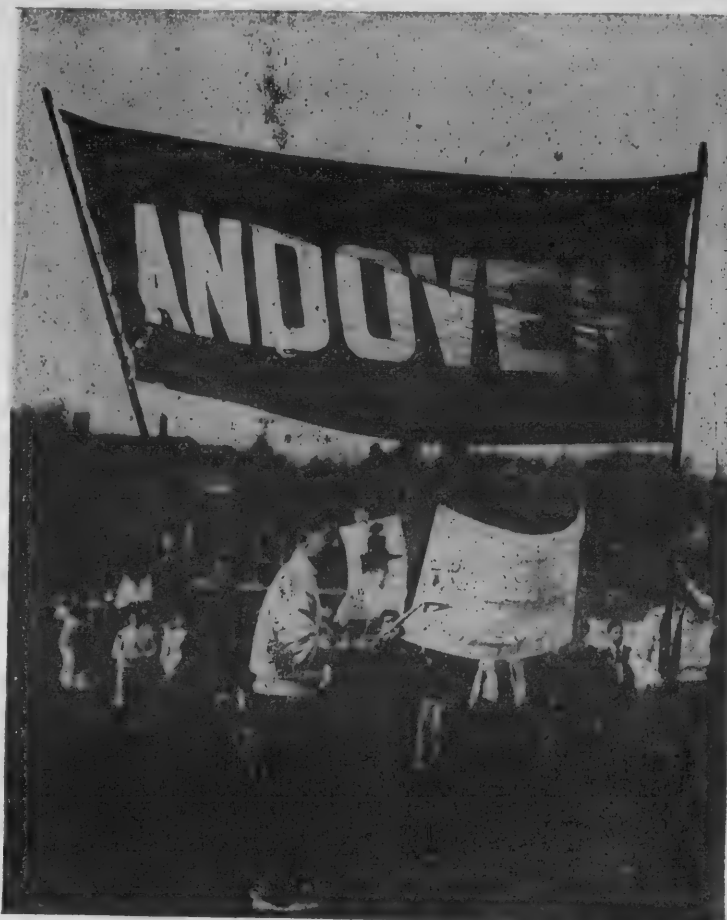

Coming from behind, after losing the opener and second game to Dartmouth JV (13-0) and Yale Freshmen (7-0), Andover cracked open the Harvard Freshmen to the tune of 21-7, and then journeyed to West Point October 19, where they defeated the Army Plebes, 14-13. The passing combinations of Clayton to Gross and Clayton to Mead were largely responsible for the Andover scores in this game, which was against a hard-hitting, well conditioned opponent. Walt Horne's dependable kicking of extra points has been outstanding throughout the season, and was responsible for the all-important points in the Army and Exeter games.

A composite Brown team, made up of some Freshmen and some members of the JV squad, slogged it out with Andover on a muddy field October 26, and Andover won, 14-6, scoring first on a Clayton-Mead touchdown pass, and secondly on a long end run by Jack Cowley, newcomer to the backfield. The following week, after the first Andover team had run up a score of 19-0 against the Tufts JV in the first quarter on touchdowns by Cowley, Jack Smith and Steve Goodhue, Coach Sorota sent in the reserves, who piled the final score up to 32-0.

Looking over the Andover team, Captain Johnny Clayton stands out as a ball totter, passer and defensive player, with nimble support from backfield mates Gov Edge, Steve Goodhue, Jack Cowley, Bill Byler and Jack Smith. Jim Mead and Lou Gross were the pass-snaring ends whose defensive work in breaking up plays should not be underestimated.

The line, with Jon Mosle of Galveston replacing Bid Bidgood at center, after the latter's injury in the Yale Freshman game proved to be strong on the defensive and effective in opening up holes for the fast-driving backs. Bill Gibbons, Bill Rosenau, Walt Horne and Sandy Trowbridge started most of the games this season at guard and tackle, and substitutes Guido Time, Bill Macomber, Ed Yost, Win Allegaert, Mitch Fish, Dan Lackey, Jim Zonino, Rod Lancey, Hank Scott, and Bill Heffernan also did good work for the Royal Blue.

Punchard-Methuen Game Ends in Tie

Punchard met one of its oldest rivals, Methuen, Sunday afternoon at the Playstead in the 36th game between the two teams.

As predicted, the two teams were an even match for each other, and the final score was a stalemate, 6-6.

Punchard got off to a touchdown lead in the first period, marching 65 yards without interruption, Yancy going over with the ball, after gliding around the right side for 18 yards. The local team showed a great deal of offensive power in the opening half, making substantial gains.

Methuen equalized the score, however, in the third quarter, after a spectacular 99-yard sweep down the field. Bedrosian tried to rush the point, but advanced only a yard on the bid. Methuen threatened again on the following kickoff, but Punchard was successful in blocking the drive.

The game was a tough struggle all the way through with both teams playing a good brand of football most of the way. Yancy was forced out of the game in the third quarter with a pulled muscle in his arm, and Russell Vose of the Methuen squad came out after the sixth play with a collarbone injury, which, though not serious, was painful.

Punchard To Meet Strong Norwood Foe

Punchard's next to the last game of the season will be played in Norwood on Saturday afternoon at 2:15. The game promises to be an exciting one with perhaps the Norwood team holding a slight edge over the local eleven.

The game will be played in the enclosed field at Norwood which seats 2000 spectators and is equipped with a modern loud-speaking system. The Norwood band will be on hand as well as our own girls' band.

For a pleasant drive and an afternoon of good football, follow Route 128 to Route 1-A, turn right on 1-A, and add your cheers to the Punchard side of the stands. Incidentally, 40% of the net profit goes to the Blue and Gold.

Paintings By Soviet Children In Current Library Exhibit

An interesting exhibit of the work of Russian children is now displayed in both the Young People's Room and the Main Reading Room of the Memorial Hall Library. From fabled Samarkand and the faraway province of Uzbekistan — the California of the Soviet Union — come pictures which mirror the life and interests of the child artists, aged six to fifteen, in a country which was fighting for its existence in total war. These water colors and drawings made during the war are being shown during Book Week. There are fifty paintings in the group, which was chosen from a much larger collection called "Children of Uzbekistan," part of which is being circulated by the Museum of Modern Art in New York. The National Council of American-Soviet Friendship has made the paintings available for exhibition in the United States.

Although most of the pictures comprising this exhibition were painted in the Uzbek Republic, the young artists include not only native Uzbeks, but also children from other parts of the Soviet Union. Some of them were evacuated from the front lines during the war, especially from the regions of Moscow and Leningrad.

In Uzbekistan hospitality has from olden times been considered a basic principle of living. The evacuated children were lovingly welcomed, and many of those whose parents had been killed were permanently adopted into Uzbek families. They have been fed and clothed, given an ample education, taught trades and offered every opportunity to develop their talents in art. One of the organizations carrying on such work is the Children's Art Training Center in Tashkent, a center for all the children who dance, sing, draw, paint and write poetry and stories. Here these paintings were done. Many of them show, both in the rich colors and filigree like designs, a kinship with Persian art. The Tree of Life sometimes appears interwoven in the designs of the borders. Yet in these pictures the exotic atmosphere of the East is combined with many of the practical contemporary aspects of the Western world.

It is significant that many of the sheets of drawing paper on which the paintings and drawings appear had sketches and designs on both sides, without a square inch wasted. In some cases it was difficult to determine which side to show. The paper shortage was acute in the Soviet Union, and art supplies in general were limited during the war years. Some of the young painters, especially those who painted or drew their farm surroundings, had never had lessons in art nor used brush or crayon before making these pictures, but their imagination and inventiveness had been unfettered. Here we find joy, humor, and glowing color, with a mature and sober conception on the part of the children of their responsibilities to their friends, their families and their country.

New Books

Here are some of the new books recently added to the Memorial Hall Library:

Joy in the Morning Wodehouse

Bertie Wooster is still meddling into other people's affairs. This time he makes a trip to the village of Steeple Bumpleigh, and while Jeeves fishes and dreams, Bertram manages to become involved with a broken engagement, a theft, a party and general confusion. This book has the same pre-war Wodehouse style, and is cleverly illustrated with cartoon-like figures.

Chloe Marr Milne

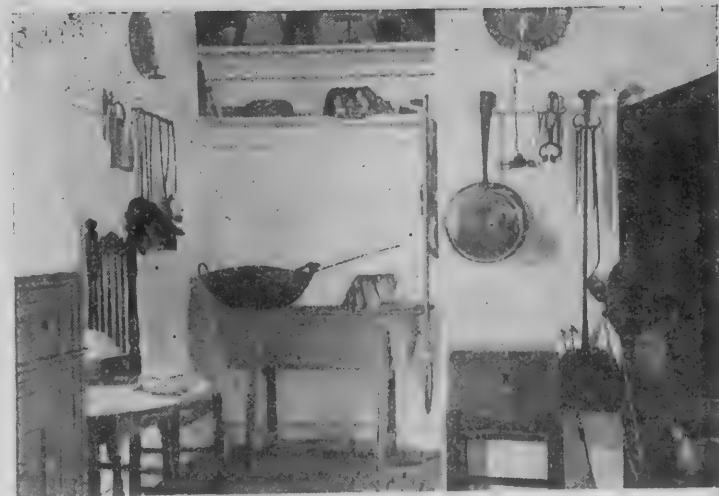

A love story told with the usual charm of Milne's work. London, books, theatres and amusing people walk through these pages.

Shod With Flame Miller

A more popular type of historical fiction of the Civil War period. The setting is East Tennessee in 1863. Caroline Donelson still holds on in her ruined home, with an unsympathetic hill girl and a deaf-mute Negro. Fortune brings together four women, and with the coming of Caroline's young nephew, there is a bitter contest among them for the happiness of the young dispatch carrier.

The Cinnamon Murder Crane

The author of the Shocking Pink Hat and the Indigo Necklace and other colorful murders has a new Abbott mystery. This is one with a Park Avenue setting, and has everything a good mystery needs.

Escape in Passion Romaine

Next to the last in the Men of Good Will series. The setting is 1933, and the action covers French politics at that time, with a good deal of romancing.

Stories of 1946 Brickell, ed.

Twenty-two stories covering from the end of World War II.

NON-FICTION

An American Year Borland

This is one of the delightful books of the year, in writing and format. The illustrations are by contemporary artists, and picture the months throughout the American year. The reading matter is a diary sort of informal essay, friendly and homely.

The Lowells and Their Seven Worlds Greenslet

Not quite a family story and yet not exactly a period piece, this may well be called a chronicle of New England. Diaries, letters, old bills, unpublished poems all supply exciting background material for this story of the Lowells from the first Percival, looking toward New England in 1639, to the new Percival, looking toward an unseen planet in 1908.

Ways To Better Hearing Brentano

The author, himself hard of hearing, gives the reader the benefit of his experience, his research and his great writing ability. Hearing aids are discussed; tests and exercises on training hearing; lip reading is explained. Some chapters are by people associated with organizations of help to those who are hard of hearing.

Southern Horizons Haynes

Here is an interesting appraisal of the new swing to Southern expansion of industry and the amazing researches now going on with waste products of agriculture. This book is an outgrowth of journeys for material for Saturday Evening Post articles, and is an easy-to-read forecast of a new life for the South.

Flags of All Nations Smith

All flags are printed in full colors, with a brief history of the origin, creation and significance of each included.

Manual of Smart Housekeeping Jones

Small, but concise book of best helps for efficient home-making. Processes, procedures and recipes are given in easily understood terms.

Arsenal of Democracy Nelson

Here is the amazing story of American war production and its achievements.

WHERE TO GO ..AND WHEN

Main St. Dilemma

Main street has settled down to a normal pace again after last week's show and in reply to questions regarding a very modern painting that appeared in Reinhold's window we have received the following information from John E. Wolcott, State Chairman of the American Artists Professional League and curator of the Whistler House in Lowell.

"An example of the very latest in modern art is on exhibition at Reinhold's shoe store, a style of painting being reviewed in magazines and books. The picture is Fra Angelo Bomberto's 'Holy Conversation of High Hats at the Academy of Modern Art' done in the style of Pragmatic Surrealism. Much acclaim was given this new picture in a recent novel named 'The Underworld of Art.' Fra Angelo is a modern American artist in spite of his name, the first American to supersede Picasso's type of invention in art. America wins over Paris."

ART ART ARTY

OR

MY PAL ET PAINT

For seven days it was a treat
Just walking up and down the street;
We shopped for things we didn't want
Just so that we could take a jaunt
To see in windows of the town
The paintings. Now they're taken down,
But we are richer now we know
The talent local people show,
With pen and ink and brush and mallet:
It makes art pleasing to our palate.

High Hat

A member of the Shawsheen P. T. A. wore a very conservative hat to the "Dessert in Hollywood" party Wednesday night which was not in the spirit of the entertainment. She plans to have her hat taste remain that way in the future, too, because just the other day she was wearing a headdress that she was convinced was very "Chic" when one of the school children dashed up to her and asked naively, "Is that the funny old hat you're going to wear to the party Wednesday?" The hat now rests in the most obscure part of her closet and it will probably stay there until next Hallowe'en.

Dress-Up Dance

A Christmas formal? What could be better! The Punched Alumni association couldn't think of anything to beat it and so they are planning one for December 26 at Crystal ballroom. Frankie Kahn's orchestra will supply the rhythm and all grads, young and old, are invited to don their most formal best and enjoy the holiday among old friends. Dancing will begin at 8:00 and last until 12:00 but there will be plenty of time to shake hands with old classmates and remark "How time flies."

Baked beans, the true New England variety, will be served at the Baptist church vestry from 5:00 to 7:00 November 23. The supper will conclude the fair that will open at 2:00.

Bridge Party

The Shawsheen P. T. A. is holding a bridge party at the school hall on Wednesday evening and members making up a table are requested to provide cards and tables for the play. Proceeds will go to the Cub troop that the association sponsors.

P. T. A. Night

On Tuesday night, November 12, the teachers of the Junior and Senior High Schools were in their respective rooms from 7:00 to 8:00 where they received parents, and discussed with them those subjects in which their children were having difficulties. Later the parents went over to the Auditorium, where they witnessed a picture on driving, provided by the Registry of Motor Vehicles. The speakers were Eugene J. Fanning, Inspector in charge of Pre-Driver Education in Massachusetts, and Martin E. Morrill, Representative of Education Department of Registry of Motor Vehicles. This part of the meeting was arranged by the P. T. A., the organization which has been doing such a fine job this year.

Visitors

Mr. William Earle, principal of the School of Special Education in Salem, Massachusetts, spent Tuesday visiting in Andover. Three of his teachers, Miss Angelica Renton, Mr. Lawrence Newell, and Mr. Paul Stacey, came with him to observe the special classes in the Andover Junior High School. At one time Salem was outstanding in this field and it is the hope of Mr. Earle that he may be able to return it to its former rating.

Mr. Earle is President of the Special Education Teachers' Association in Massachusetts, and spends considerable time visiting special classes. He is, therefore, well qualified to make the statement that he did about the Andover classes. He said that Andover was one of the best organized and best equipped groups in the state. He was greatly impressed by the departmental work in the special rooms and said that Mr. Blanchard was to be complimented for his advanced thinking and planning in this field.

When we read that Edison was sent home from school, when he was in the first grade, to quote his teacher, "because he acted addled," we realize how careful we must be to avoid misplacement of children.

Commendations

Three young people won special commendation on Friday for work well done during the first marking period. Frances Buckley received a special Art honor and Ernestine Bellisle, both in Room 1, received an honor for exceptionally fine work in the office. James Winters, Room 2, received commendation for athletics in his class.

100% Membership

Room 7 was the first to report 100% membership in the Junior Red Cross. Other rooms are gradually announcing full membership, and it is hoped that the school may have 100% membership by Friday of this week.

Book Week, Nov. 10 - 16

The Memorial Hall Library invited all Junior High School boys and girls to a program of movies, Wednesday afternoon. The movies were "All American Way," a sports picture of baseball, yacht races, basket-ball, boxing, etc.; and "Americans All," a fast moving film of South America.

The newest books will be on display during Book Week, and may be reserved in the Young People's Room. These may be borrowed the following week. A wide variety of other books are ready for use now.

Honors

Occasionally a principal finds that he must scold a number of people for being uncooperative, and occasionally he has to make a school law because of these few, affecting everyone in the school. This always makes him feel badly. However, it is on those days when the school meets in the Auditorium to have honor cards distributed to those who worked for them, that he feels that a job has been well done, and is really worth while. Following are the names of those who were called to the platform last Friday by Mr. Blanchard to receive Highest Honor, High Honor, and Honor Cards.

HIGHEST HONORS

(All A's)

Grade 7 — Edward Dean, Judith Maddock.

Grade 8 — George Bernardin, Janet Fieldhouse, Thomas Wilkinson.

Upon returning to home rooms, students were given report cards to take home.

Library Staff

At the regular meeting of the Library Staff on Thursday, it was stated that the library had $3.40 on hand. This amount has been paid into the library for overdue books and will soon go into the library once more in the form of a book. A student program, in charge of the program committee, was held following the meeting. Each member was given a stunt to do and had to perform in front of the rest of the club.

Legion Helpers

On last Saturday, November 9, a number of the boys and girls of the Junior High School helped the American Legion by selling poppies. Some of the young people included Claire Henderson, Charles Dwyer, William Stewart, Rita Sevigny, Mary Hulse, James McGrath, Ann Williams, Joyce Reed, Ethel Campbell, William Dole, Carol Lewis, Joan O'Donnell, Jean Dumont, and Lolita Machon.

Getting Clubby

Claire Henderson has joined the Secretaries Club. Peter Caswell has joined the Stamp Club (we understand that this is a really live-wire club, made so by the enthusiasm of Miss Olive Bisbee, the sponsor, who is a philatelist herself), and Jeanne Dumont has joined the Religious Education class which meets on Wednesday at 1:20.

Glad To Know

Mrs. Walker, who sponsors the Secretaries Club, is very happy to know that five of her secretaries, Beatrice Bourassa, Eva Glovinco, Barbara Hamilton, Claire Henderson, and Ethel Campbell, received Honor Cards for work in their studies well done during the past marking period. This, in spite of the fact that they must spend time for the Secretaries Club, because one-third, five out of fifteen, received honors.

It is especially gratifying to know that Ernestine Bellisle, a member of Room 1, received special commendation for excellent assistance to Mrs. Walker in the office.

Conducted Tour

By special arrangement with Mr. Charles J. McCabe of the Lawrence Gas and Electric Company, the 8th grade boys have had the very rare opportunity to visit that company's power plant, which supplies power to the Merrimack valley. The first half of the class visited on Tuesday and the other half on Thursday. This was a very great privilege, which is granted to few people, but Mr. McCabe is greatly interested in the Andover Junior High School, and this interest prompted him to provide this very fine visit for the boys. In next week's column there will appear an account of what the boys saw.

Armistice Program

At the regular weekly assembly in the Auditorium, Room 5, with Miss Beatrice Stevens in charge, presented a National Education and Armistice Day program. It was very well done and was in the form of a radio program with Miss Eleanor Bateson in charge, and it held the attention of the entire school from beginning to end. Gregory Arabian played a harmonica solo, "Keep the Home Fires Burning" and this was followed by the salute to the flag and the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner" by the entire school. The general theme for Education Week was "Education for the Atomic Age" and it was divided into seven parts, each part being given over to a day of the week. The program was as follows:

Cheerleaders

The cheerleaders wish to reply to a letter in the "Townsmen," criticizing their sweaters and paraphernalia at the games. The girls explain that they don't wear uniforms as the Stoneham girls do, because the athletic association cannot afford them. They would also like to quote to the alumnus of the class of '29 the following article from the Portland Sunday Telegram and Sunday Press-Herald, Portland, Maine, November 3, 1946.

"And . . . like other sports, and such work-a-day things as welding that have been taken over by the so-called 'weaker' sex, cheerleading, too, has changed hands . . . and for the better. To anyone acquainted with mass psychology, the superiority of girls over boys in the delicate art of cheerleading is unquestioned. Yet, it has been only in the last dozen years or so that the girl cheerleader has 'bounced' into

Sophomore Dance

The Sophomores have placed very attractive posters around the schools and down town advertising their dance. The affair will be held in the gymnasium Friday evening, the 22nd of November.

Red Cross Drive

Collections are now being taken up for the Junior Red Cross. It is hoped that the school can make a 100% record this year.

Guidance

Mr. Bernard Kellmurray, director of guidance, spent the weekend at West Point visiting Cadet Charles W. Hayward, Punchard class of '45.

Skating Rink

The tennis courts by the football field are being converted into a skating rink by the boys' gym classes. The boards have been set and all that is needed now is some water and cold weather with which to freeze it. The rinks will be used for hockey and other skating during the gym periods.

Senior Teas

On Tuesday afternoon, November 12, Mrs. Emma Carter gave the second of a series of teas for the Senior girls at her home.

You Benefited By It

In our first Grocery Window as you come down Essex Street, is a Bulletin Board, just "Loaded" with some of our "Ads" of the past five years.

To some, these ads will now appear very amusing. The others who haven't forgotten those trying weeks and months, will pause and recollect almost immediately how this concern coped with ever changing conditions brought upon us by the War. It wasn't luck that our predecessor, Mr. James E. Greeley, knew all the answers, neither was it that you, the Buying Public were not too greatly inconvenienced. Now, as then, we're continually looking ahead, feeling our way carefully and putting into constant usage the many lessons which we absorbed under his guidance.

ANOTHER STAR ROLE

Conversation in the boxes at the opera was so prevalent that the management had to post notices begging the occupants to be silent.

One woman was particularly notorious for chatting incessantly as the music was going on.

She invited a casual friend to attend a performance of "Tristan und Isolde" with her.

"I'd love to," her friend answered. "I've never heard you in Tristan!" of war. Last year Troop 73 defeat.

BOY SCOUT NOTES

Bridge Party

The Shawsheen Parent Teacher Association, which sponsors Cub Pack 71 and Scout Troop 71, is holding a card party on Wednesday evening, November 20, at the Shawsheen school for the benefit of the boys. Pack 71 was organized over three years ago and Troop 71 was chartered June 30 of this year. Over 50 Cubs and Scouts are members of the two units.

Troop 73—South Church

The troop traveled to Swampscott High School gym for a Scout meet with Troop 54 of the Bay Shore Council on Tuesday, November 5. Troop 73 won three events, lost four and tied one. Scouts making the trip were A. Douglass, W. Adkins, C. Dimlich, R. Dimlich, R. Christy, R. Hutton, G. Peters, W. Crawford, E. Lawson, D. Adkins, J. Belka, E. Lewis, D. Pingree, and F. Wright. They were accompanied by three leaders, Rev. Frederick Noss, Spaulding Shaw, and Robert Hatton. Troop 73's compass team, consisting of Scouts Douglass, Adkins, C. Dimlich, R. Dimlich, Christy, Hatton, Lawson and Pingree, easily won the compass race.

The Morse signaling team also won with signalmen Pingree, Hatton, Adkins and Dimlich performing. The knot tying team of Scouts Christy, Douglass, Adkins, Dimlich, Peters, Lawson, Belka, Pingree and Lewis came in first. The two troops tied in a dodgeball game and Troop 54 of Swampscott won the semaphore signaling contest, relay race, "snatch the bacon" game; and tug of the Swampscott troop, 6 to 2. A

P. A.-Exeter Soccer Scoreless Deadlock

Holding a favored Exeter soccer team to a scoreless tie, Andover's booters wound up their season at Exeter, November 6. In Coach Jim Ryley's 35th season at Andover, the team went into the Exeter game pretty much the underdog, having lost four games out of seven played.

After winning from Milton Academy, 2-1, Andover lost to the Harvard freshmen and Tilton, both by the score of 1-0 for the visitors. On October 19, the team journeyed to Hanover, where they defeated the Dartmouth freshmen, 1-0, after a hard-fought game. The score came in a penalty kick made by Captain Fred Zonino.

Andover dropped the next two to Medford (3-1) and to Deerfield (2-0), playing both games at home, but came back on October 31 to defeat Governor Dummer by 1-0.

In the final game of the season at Exeter, a long and tough contest, which went into an overtime period, ended with the toot of the whistle just before an Exeter goal skipped past Gus Arnold, Andover goalie, so the game ended in a scoreless tie.

Outstanding for the Blue this season were Captain Fred Zonino, just back from the wars, Scotty Wheaton, Tom Wyman, Don Harshman, and Gus Arnold, also a World War II veteran.

The annual financial canvass of the Protestant churches of Andover and Greater Lawrence will be held on December 1.

In the businesslike financing methods of the Protestant churches today, the members and friends of the churches once a year are given the opportunity of signifying the amount of support they will give for the ensuing year.

The amount of our pledge to the church is a revelation of our belief in its importance. Next December 1, let us indicate clearly that we are wholeheartedly for a strong church.

P. A.-Exeter Soccer Scoreless Deadlock

Holding a favored Exeter soccer team to a scoreless tie, Andover's booters wound up their season at Exeter, November 6. In Coach Jim Ryley's 35th season at Andover, the team went into the Exeter game pretty much the underdog, having lost four games out of seven played.

After winning from Milton Academy, 2-1, Andover lost to the Harvard freshmen and Tilton, both by the score of 1-0 for the visitors. On October 19, the team journeyed to Hanover, where they defeated the Dartmouth freshmen, 1-0, after a hard-fought game. The score came on a penalty kick made by Captain Fred Zonino.

Andover dropped the next two to Medford (3-1) and to Deerfield (2-0), playing both games at home, but came back on October 31 to defeat Governor Dummer by 1-0.

In the final game of the season at Exeter, a long and tough contest, which went into an overtime period, ended with the toot of the whistle just before an Exeter goal skipped past Gus Arnold, Andover goalie, so the game ended in a scoreless tie.

Outstanding for the Blue this season were Captain Fred Zonino, just back from the wars, Scotty Wheaton, Tom Wyman, Don Harshman, and Gus Arnold, also a World War II veteran.

ANOTHER STAR ROLE

Conversation in the boxes at the opera was so prevalent that the management had to post notices begging the occupants to be silent. One woman was particularly notorious for chatting incessantly as the music was going on.

She invited a casual friend to attend a performance of "Tristan und Isolde" with her.

"I'd love to," her friend answered. "I've never heard you in Tristan!"

They were accompanied by three leaders, Rev. Frederick Noss, Spaulding Shaw, and Robert Hatton. Troop 73's compass team, consisting of Scouts Douglass, Adkins, C. Dimlich, R. Dimlich, Christy, Hatton, Lawson and Pingree, easily won the compass race.

The Morse signaling team also won with signalmen Pingree, Hatton, Adkins and Dimlich performing. The knot tying team of Scouts Christy, Douglass, Adkins, Dimlich, Peters, Lawson, Belka, Pingree and Lewis came in first. The two troops tied in a dodgeball game and Troop 54 of Swampscott won the semaphore signaling contest, relay race, "snatch the bacon" game; and tug of war. Last year Troop 73 defeat.

return match in the form of an outdoor meet is being planned for May of next year.

That 'Voice of America' Idea

David Sarnoff announces plans for using the radio for world peace through the establishment of a "The Voice of America" program to be broadcast to all peoples everywhere. We understand it already has progressed to the point where "Accord" will be spelled backwards and "Brotherly Love" sideways for 55 nations. The only point offering a problem at the minute is whether to give Russia more than five silver dollars if she answers the question, "Is The Old Oaken Bucket a brokerage office, a nightclub or a song?"

Those behind "The Voice of America" are hard at work on the features which radio believes to be the heart of mass appeal, those radio jingles. But up to the moment they have not found any quite silly enough to reach all nations. The only two accepted so far are:
World wide order! That's a lot!
Love and kisses hit the spot!
Our world peace pills always work—

Of course, on any international radio program from America we will have to work on the importance of the vitamin in eliminating international distrust, and the advantages of the right "regulator" in creating better understandings. But there are certain dangers. Suppose the American program cures Germany of pink toothbrush but does nothing for Romania? What if we show India how to cure dandruff, but it still feels quarrelsome?

Couldn't more ill will, instead of less, develop? How will Russia feel if the quiz program jackpots are won by other countries, and will the British like it if Ireland gets the $12 for answering the question "Who wrote Alexander's Rag Time Band?"

A youngster named Larry Parks tries the impossible in portraying Al Jolson in the new movie, but does the best that could be expected. There never was but one Jolson, although there always were dozens of imitators. The vitality of Jolson in the theater can only be appreciated by those who saw him in his heyday, when he set the audience cheering at his first appearance on stage and held it in the hollow of his hand all evening.

SMALL HOMES OF TODAY AND TOMORROW

On Sunday afternoon, Nov. 17th, the library will observe its annual Open House from 3:30 to 5:30 o'clock. As has been the custom in the past, the library trustees and staff members take this opportunity to welcome as friends all those who feel that the library is an important part of their lives, and extend an invitation to all newcomers to our community to share this part of Book Week with us.

The speaker this year, Mrs. Johnson O'Connor, an architect of Boston, has an attractive theme for her talk — "Small Houses of Today and Tomorrow." Mrs. O'Connor is enthusiastic about small homes, and says this about herself: "I really want to talk about beginning to build a house by choosing a community and then a plot of land. Houses to live in interest me more than houses just to look at and I like to develop the entourage even for tiny houses and to show people how to give distinction to simple Cape Cod Cottages by relating them to the sun and breeze and view and using the outside as well as the inside for living."

Mrs. O'Connor studied architecture at Massachusetts of Technology and in Europe. She is a member of a firm of women, "Howe, Manning and Almy" who specialized in residential work for some years. She has worked on housing for lower wage earners and is one of the architects who designed Old Harbor Village in South Boston.

There will be an open period for questions and answers, and it is hoped that many prospective home owners will come with their problems. There will be displays of housing material, small model houses, and selections of the newer books.

RED CROSS NEEDS GREY LADIES

The Veterans Hospital in Bedford has asked Andover and the surrounding communities to recruit volunteers to act as Grey Ladies and members of the Arts and Skills Corps. These two Red Cross activities give women an opportunity to perform a great service for the veterans in the hospital.

The Grey Ladies, after a four-afternoon course in hospital routine and procedures, may choose the type of work they wish to do and the time they wish to give, usually two half days or one full day a week. The duties vary: delivery of library books to the wards, changing the water in flower vases, playing games and entertaining, feeding patients or delivery of birthday presents. Women who can play the piano for group singing are in especial demand.

The Arts and Skills workers take the same course. They may teach oil painting, leather work, weaving, textile painting, which is very popular, or other forms of arts and crafts. Women who are interested in this form of activity but who do not feel that they know enough to teach others may volunteer as apprentices and help in preparation of materials as they themselves learn more about the crafts.

The Andover Chapter of the Red Cross will try to arrange transportation to Bedford in the Red Cross car for those who need it.

The next course starts in early December. Any women who wish to volunteer their services or learn more about the work are asked to call Mrs. Roscoe E. Duke, Andover 1090, or Mrs. James Eaton, Andover 1465-J. Application forms may be procured at the Red Cross rooms on Mondays, Wednesdays or Fridays.
